EDITORIAL NOTE

This list and index to articles in Catholic Archives, Numbers 1-12, 1981-1992, is issued in response to many requests for such an aid. It is arranged in three parts. Firstly, there is a list of articles classified by subject and arranged alphabetically by author within each grouping. This is followed by a list of articles also arranged by author. These two sections simply repeat, collectively, the details given on the contents page of each edition, and therefore require no introduction.

The third section provides a page index to persons, places and subjects mentioned by the authors and, here, some comments may be helpful. Firstly, it will be noted that the titles of articles and the names of authors are omitted since these are given in the first two sections. The index concentrates on the main articles in each edition and thus editorial notes, conference reports, book reviews and the like are ignored. The index is also confined to the main text of each article, so that references in footnotes, booklists and similar details are omitted.

In nearly one hundred and twenty articles, references to persons, places and subjects vary considerably in detail. For instance, some persons are mentioned by surname only while others are accorded their full name and titles. However, the indexers have been conscious that readers will probably approach the index with special knowledge, and they have therefore included almost all relevant details which appear on each page, irrespective of their apparent significance. Even so, some imprecise names, in the nature of 'Mr Smith', have naturally been excluded. Also, to avoid unnecessary repetition, the names of separate members of one family which occur in one article or on a single page have been indexed generally by family name, even though some may be individually indexed where they appear in other articles.

Almost all place names are indexed. Where it has seemed helpful, the county or country of the place concerned is stated in parenthesis, but unidentified places are given as they occur in the text. References to streets, churches, houses and the like in major cities are not separately indexed but are ascribed to the city itself. London is, however, an exception to this practice: London boroughs and districts are indexed in their alphabetical sequence, but streets, churches and particular locations will be found under the main heading of London.

The subjects indexed simply identify the names of institutions, political events, administrative acts, and other circumstances specifically mentioned by authors, and the indexers have not added to or interpreted the text in any way. The index omits one article totally. This is the list of 'Catholic Lay Societies in England and Wales, 1870-1970: A Preliminary List' in No, 10. since this is itself an alphabetical list.

The index has been compiled by Fr Michael Williams and the Honorary Editor who initially prepared separate indexes to six editions each. The Editor has, however, been responsible for the subsequent collation of these indexes and for the editing and arrangement of the final version. Variations and errors will have inevitably occurred in indexing manually such a number and range of articles, and both indexers crave the the indulgence of readers who may find irritating evidences of human fallibility.

In each entry the number of the yearly edition is given in italic and this is followed by the page number or numbers in plain text.
